

From: Timothy Karas
To: Timothy Karas
Subject: Justice denied anywhere diminishes justice everywhere
Date: Sunday, May 31, 2020 3:59:31 PM

CoA Family:

The safety, success, and well-being of our community is our first priority. Standing up to injustice is imperative. Because failing to act costs lives. Because our children should not have to raise their children amid violence. It rips us apart.

At College of Alameda, we have an ongoing obligation to our Vision, “that we are a diverse, supportive, empowering learning community for seekers of knowledge...,” and to our Mission, “to serve the educational needs of our diverse community...” CoA values diversity and inclusion through its institutional values and commitment to social justice and educational equity.

“The message after 50 years is still unresolved,” remarks Samuel Egerton, who donated the poster to the Smithsonian after carrying it in protest during the 1963 March on Washington. (Collection of the Smithsonian National Museum of African American History and Culture, gift of Samuel Y. Edgerton)

From: Katie Nodjimbadem. smithsonianmag.com. July 27, 2017

<https://www.smithsonianmag.com/smithsonian-institution/long-painful-history-police-brutality-in-the-us-180964098/>

Timothy Karas, Ed.D

President
College of Alameda

Administration Building
555 Ralph Appezato Memorial Parkway
Alameda, CA 94501
tkaras@peralta.edu ☎ (510) 748-2200