Google Campus Tour

The famous Google campus "Googleplex" is located in Mountain View. The campus is widely spread, making the aura of a Google city around itself. The campus is as user-friendly as is the whole Android and Pc interface. The visitors, as well as the employees, get to enjoy many perks of the campus.

Visiting the campus as a student, let me enhance my knowledge about the working profile in life. Students get to learn a lot about job opportunities and about the correct pathways to achieving their goals. I was motivated by the hard work put by each employee to bring Google to another level today.

Google keeps prominent public art figures throughout the campus. We can see 3D models of all of the existing Android versions, for example, KitKat, Marshmallow, and even the Ice Cream Sandwich. The campus follows same the same color scheme as their logo. We can also see that on the Google bikes. They have convenient measures of traveling around the campus, for instance, the Google Self-Driving Car or the free shuttle.

The employees enjoy additional perks at work. They have Nap-pods for a quick nap, massage rooms, showers, mini kitchen, and many more such things to make the workplace feel homely. Google makes sure that each employee is healthy. They have fitness centers and also many sports-oriented fields.

Ultimately, the main and only insight that I took back from this trip was that working at a big company as Google is not easy, but a dream come true.
